

Lost & Found

What to do if you lose or find a pet

Have you ever come home to a backyard gate blown open with your dog nowhere in sight? Sheer panic runs through your veins and you begin relentlessly calling for your pet to no avail. What do you do? Here are some helpful guidelines to follow:

Should you find a stray pet you can follow some of these same guidelines. If the owner is not located, then contact one of the numerous rescue groups for help in placing the dog into foster care. For a comprehensive list of local pet rescues/partners visit www.pacc911.org. Remember that pets are completely dependent upon us for their safety!

Call the veterinarian offices in your area to find out if your dog was brought in by a good Samaritan. Microchipping is extremely helpful in this situation.

Post flyers throughout your neighborhood area. Placing your pet's photo and writing a description of your pet on the flyer is always helpful. Inform mail carriers and working crews in your area.

Report your lost pet to the following organizations:
